Introduction

Community colleges serve students with a variety of interests and goals, such as earning a degree, developing job related skills, personal enrichment, or transferring to a four-year institution. Thus, transfer is one of the core functions of community college. At Northern Virginia Community College (NOVA), students who intend to transfer make up the majority of the student population.

This report presents data on students transferring from NOVA into four-year institutions in the Fall and Spring semesters of 2011-12 and 2012-13. For example, the 2012-13 transfer data presents the number of students who enrolled in a four-year institution in Fall 2012 or Spring 2013 after attending NOVA at any point within the previous eight years (2005-06 through 2012-13).

All public four-year institutions and private four-year institutions with at least one transfer reported in either year are presented in Tables 2 and 3 (on the following pages).

The transfer numbers are based on National Student Clearing House (NSC) data that were provided by the Virginia Community College System (VCCS). The data are presented separately for public and private four-year institutions.

It should be noted that NSC includes data from institutions across the nation. Although these data encompass most of the institutions nationwide, some institutions may not have opted to share their data with NSC, and such institutions are not represented here.
